POLICIES

Community Resource Officers

In accordance with the chancellor’s strategic initiatives outlined in “Pathways to Excellence: A Strategic Plan,” as well as the SIU Department of Public Safety’s proactive, community-oriented and community-involved policing philosophy, University Housing and DPS continue to collaborate and coordinate services to resolve community issues impacting the safety and security of University Housing student residents, guests and staff. This cooperative effort is intended to improve the overall quality of life across University Housing residence halls, programming spaces and dining facilities. Together, the Department of Public Safety and University Housing have dedicated two police officers to University Housing facilities. These officers, known as community resource officers (CROs), provide an open and ongoing channel of communication between the various University Housing communities and the Department of Public Safety.

Officer Fager

The 2016-2017 Community Resources Officers are Officer Michael Allen and Officer Adam Fager. They will work to create a positive and proactive police presence in the residence hall communities and surrounding areas. Officers Allen and Fager will have a direct impact on building positive perceptions about the presence of uniformed police officers in the community and will strive to build relationships between students and the police.

Police Liaison Program

The police liaison program was initiated to promote the safety of students and staff in addition to enhancing the quality of life in the residence halls through the presentation of safety programs and the involvement of officers on a more constant and intense level. The program provides an open and ongoing channel of communication between residents of University Housing and police. Police officers assigned to the police liaison program attend housing staff meetings, coordinate special presentations and provide relevant safety information to members of the community.

The liaison officers will seek information and input from housing staff as to the specific and varying needs of each housing area, working to achieve solutions that make for a positive living and learning atmosphere. Liaison officers and housing staff communicate regularly in addition to normal patrol functions within their respective areas. This communication and interaction allows the officers to get involved with more of the residents and learn about their specific needs. This allows officers to better suit the needs of the day-to-day activities in each community. Liaison officers and assigned building locations are still being developed. More information about your building liaison can be found at police.siu.edu.
